

CSR & Environment

MC is promoting a wide range of environmental and CSR focused activities that cover various fields and geographical regions in order to grow together with the communities that it works in and to help build a sustainable and prosperous society for the future. Greater expectations from society have motivated MC to further strengthen these efforts, and to further develop businesses aimed at sustainable growth and development.

Environmental and CSR-related Activities

In the environmental field, MC recognizes climate change as an important issue to address and is working within its own capacity to reduce its own CO<sub>2</sub> emissions as well as Group company emissions. In terms of businesses, in April 2009, MC established the Corporate Development Division in order to engage in businesses that will drive the Company's growth in the years ahead. Through the development of clean energy, including solar and wind power, and biomass fuel businesses, MC will continue to contribute in many ways to the realization of a low-carbon society.

In March 2008, MC established the CSR & Environmental Affairs Advisory Committee, which is made up of eight respected external professionals from various environmental and CSR-related backgrounds. This committee meets regularly throughout the year and offers wide-ranging advice on issues related to the environment, CSR, social contribution activities and other related matters.

Overview of the New Organization Framework

In terms of social contribution activities, MC is actively promoting activities in four key fields: ongoing social contribution activities conceived and conducted voluntarily by employees (Friendship Camp for Mothers and Children, etc.); programs that contribute to various regions around the world (Malaysia tree-planting program, etc.); activities in the public welfare and education fields (Exchange student scholarships, etc.); and activities related to art and culture

(Mitsubishi Corporation Art Gate Program).

MC also believes that it is important for each and every employee to heighten their own awareness towards contributing to society. In order to encourage and help facilitate this enhanced consciousness, MC runs various programs that encourage employees to participate in volunteer activities.
